Guest Biography

The Mission

Brent Lindeque,(founder of the Good Things Guy), is on a mission to change what the world pays attention to. We believe that there is good news all around us and over 25 million South Africans agree with us. We hunt down and report on the best Good News stories from South Africa, and the World. Our mission is to change the national conversation and give South Africans a balance to the news in South Africa.

The award-winning South African Good News site

Good Things Guy is dedicated to telling good stories and we like to share things that inspire. The award-winning platform is one of the leading good news sites in South Africa & has grown from one person with a simple idea to a full team that brings good news to South Africans every day. Good Things Guy was officially launched on the 1st of August 2015 in order to only promote good news, inspirational stories and promote only positive, upbeat media. Good Things Guy is a global, multi-platform media company that distils unique content across multiple media platforms.
